
Possible error in Mengenlehreuhr wiki page

Un- Disclosed <chaocipher@gmail.com>
To: Kryptos@yahoogroups.com

Wed, Sep 14, 2016 at 7:02 PM

I'm not sure if anyone in the Kryptos community has brought this up, but I believe the original location of the Berlin Clock is incorrect on the wiki page. It probably won't matter to solving K4, but I thought just in case I would post it.

<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Mengenlehreuhr>

The text says:

Commissioned by the Senate of Berlin and designed by Dieter Binnering, the original full-sized Mengenlehreuhr was originally located at the Kurfürstendamm on the corner with Uhlandstraße.

Below is the original location:

Notice the two towers in the background. That's Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church, which also had a clock in it.

Here is a pic from the intersection claimed by wiki:

But now check out an intersection a couple blocks closer to the towers:

I think this is closer to the original location.

52°30'14.0"N 13°19'54.0"E

52.503896, 13.331667

Intersection of Kurfurstendamm and Joachimsthaler Str.

Please let me know what you think.

Thanks,
Chaocipher