The vigenere table on the sculpture slants to the left from the top. A picture being worth a thousand words I have a picture above with red lines. Using this table with a key word to select the alphabets means I will move down or up the left side selecting alphabets. I will use the key word fiddlebats and encrypt "jimsanbornsculptor" ...

The reason for this exercise. B and A ajoin each other in the alphabet. P and T ajoin each other in the table. Consequently we get a double E cipher letter. I think that is a crib. In my transposition table I have some double letters in the rows and this suggests to me if there is an eight letter word that was used to encipher the message that is has a common two letter digram in it. Like ST or ED.

k,M,c are Key, Message and cipher.
